FORTUNATE-JOYFUL NUPTIALS

One of the most elaborate and gorgeous weddings was solemnized at the Community Chapel last Wednesday evening when Mr. and Mrs. U. R. Fortunate gave in marriage their beautiful and charming daughter, Ima Love, to Major I. B. Joyful. Most impressive was the song "O Promise Me," sweetly sung by Miss Lotta Good. Immediately following the stately father and mother of the bride took their places.

To the strains of Mendelssohn's came the groomsmen clad in beautiful suits and superb neck ties and bouquets, who arranged themselves in a circle around the officiating officer.

Trailing serenely down the aisles came Misses Omy Sole and Skint A. Block in lace hats and pleasant smiles. Skipping merrily forward Misses Ura Darling and Mora Cumming helped to form the circle into which the bewitching bride, upon the arm of her maid, Ima Hoping, came and met the groom and his best man, Ketch U. Yett. After a serious introduction Rev. O. B. There pronounced them irresponsible and insane. After which the coquettish little flower girls, Drusilla and Araminta Cutey strewed the path of the handsome couple with sweet peas and turnip tops.

Mr. and Mrs. Joyful betook themselves to Rockton on an extended trip, and after the 13th they will duly return to their respective homes.

"The Womanless Wedding" described above was given Wednesday evening at the Community Building by the Converse Club of Winnsboro and was a decided success. From the moment of the opening song until the last couple left the stage the audience was in roars of laughter. Round after round of applause greeted each impersonation. The make-up was so perfect that it was difficult to recognize some of those who took part in the farce.
